

Chemical leak forces evacuation

"It was a cheap lesson," said Dr. James Ficociello, chairman of the Wilmington Board of Health.

A chemical leak at Olin Chemical on Eames Street late Monday afternoon resulted in an evacuation of the South Wilmington area. There were no serious injuries reported, and the cause of the leak was repaired within two hours. By 8 p.m., residents were returning to their homes.

Perhaps the greatest effect of the emergency is yet to come. Town officials are seeking tighter controls on chemical operations in local industry, especially in the South Wilmington area. The board of health met in executive session Tuesday evening to discuss what action to take against Olin.

Monday's situation was first reported to be a leak of phosphorus trichloride, a chemical which is highly toxic. It turned out that the batch of chemicals being processed did contain that chemical, but that the escaping vapor was hydrogen chloride, which is an irritant, but is not toxic in vapor form.

The problem resulted from an electrical problem with a pump used to force the hydrogen chloride vapor into a scrubber, which removes harmful elements before the vapor is released into the atmosphere. The untreated vapors then began to vent out through a chimney.

The problem was reported to officials, bring response from local police, fire, and emergency management, along with state police and state environmental personnel.

About 5:20 p.m. police began advising residents to either evacuate or remain indoors. Nearby plants were given similar warnings, and were told to shut off their ventilating systems. Many plants sent people home; others, including Olin, did not.

An evacuation center was set up at the Wildwood School, with Red Cross workers testing the vital signs of evacuees. About 200 persons showed up at the Wildwood School.

There is no hard number telling how many people were evacuated. One figure, a guess, was 2500. Others were lower. The number of residents evacuated from their homes was probably around 300.

The escaped vapor at first was moving slowly to the east, with heavy concentrations reported on Industrial Way between 5 and 6 p.m.

A wind shift shortly after 6 began moving the cloud of vapor to the north, and into residential areas on Brentwood and Morse avenues. The vapor was slow moving, and did not extend much beyond Lowell Street.

Police blocked off the area, allowing no traffic on Woburn or West streets south of Lowell Street, or on Eames Street.

Additional police and fire personnel were called in, but Police Chief Bobby Stewart declined to call in the regional tactical unit. This unit, prescribed in a contingency plan, would bring in 75 men within an hour.

Several emergency personnel were treated for inflammation of the eyes and mucous membrane.

Chief Stewart said the emergency provided a good training session, and could provide good training for a more serious problem.

"The debriefing on this will be quite extensive," he said.

Stewart said that he is more concerned with hazardous

"We don't know what's out there," he said.

Lawrence Shuts Out Wilmington

by John Gage '87

For the second week in a row, the Wilmington Wildcats football team has lost, this time on October 19th against the Lawrence Lancers, who shutout the Wildcats, 28-0. And, for the second week in a row, the officiating caused some controversy for the Wildcats.

With 1:43 left in the third quarter and Wilmington down 20-0, Lawrence tries to punt from inside their 10-yard line. Punter Bob Farrington fumbles a low snap from the center, but tries to get the punt off anyway. The punt is partially blocked and recovered by Al Ausiello in the endzone for an apparent Wilmington touchdown. However, there was a flag on the play. The referee counted twelve men on the field for Wilmington, and the touchdown was nullified. A 15-yard penalty was imposed on Wilmington.

"We only had eleven men on the field," says a disgusted coach Harrison. "We have it on film. I don't know where they came up with that call."

The game didn't start too well for Wilmington with Anthony Cutone fumbling the ball over to Lawrence on the first play after the kickoff. A few plays later, Mike Herlihy ran 18 yards for a touchdown putting Lawrence ahead 6-0.

Later, with 3:13 left in the quarter, quarterback Bob Wing completed a 24-yard pass to Bob Farrington, giving the Lancers a 12-0 lead. But in the second quarter, Wilmington tried unsuccessfully to fight back.

With 4:25 left in the second quarter, Wing completed a 17-yard pass to Farrington, which brought Lawrence to Wilmington's 1-yard line. On first down, sophomore linebacker Don Sullivan threw the Lancers for a loss. On second down, Wilmington made a stand and denied Lawrence the touchdown. But on third down, Wing took over and ran in for the touchdown himself. Mike Herlihy ran in for the two-point conversion, making it 20-0. Wing seemed impressive.

"We weren't sure where he would play," states coach Harrison. "I guess he was injured and didn't play last week. He is an excellent athlete."

Down 20-0, Wilmington needed some offense before the end of the half. Kevin Collins tried to help out by catching a 25-yard pass from quarterback Chris Athanasia and then a 9-yard pass, but Wilmington could not capitalize on the plays while Athanasia found himself scrambling and the offensive line crumbling.

"In the first half, we were very inconsistent as a team, and we had some individual breakdown," recalls Harrison. "Going into the second half, we wanted to tighten up on defense, and we went over assignment because we weren't blocking the right people."

In the second half, Wilmington seemed to come out of the locker room strong. Peter Campbell and Dave MacDonald doing quite a good job on the Lawrence running backs, while Ed Shelley did an impressive job at the defensive end. However, the Wildcats could not get their offense going. The only Wilmington touchdown was made by the special team unit, and that was nullified by a penalty.

"We didn't pick up the blitzing linebackers," coach Harrison gives for the reason of no offense. "We had a lot of people in our backfield."

Lawrence's record goes to 1-4 with the win and remain in tenth place in the Merrimack Valley Conference. Wilmington's record goes to 2-3, and they drop to seventh place.

Warriors Inch Out Wildcats, 20-14

by John Gage '87

The October 12th Homecoming game against the Andover Golden Warriors will probably be remembered, in the minds of the Wildcat team, as the game they could have and should have won.

The game started out quietly with a scoreless first quarter, but in the second quarter, the Perry-Perry connection took over for the Warriors. First, senior quarterback Tim Perry threw a 31 yard pass to his sophomore brother John for a touchdown. Then, minutes later, Tim threw a 49 yard TD pass to John which put Andover ahead 14-0. The final totals for John Perry were five receptions for 122 yards and two touchdowns.

"John Perry is an excellent athlete," states Wildcat head coach Ed Harrison. "But is we did a better job on Tim, the outcome would have been better. Offensively, we did a nice job. We have to toughen up on defense."

The scrappy Wilmington team would not stay down for long. The Wildcats, under the command of senior quarterback Chris Athanasia, marched down to Andover's 1-yard line where the team's leading scorer, Anthony Cutone, ran in for the touchdown and the two-point conversion.

Minutes afterward, near the end of the first half, Athanasia put on a little air-shkew of his own with a tremendous TD pass that would have at least tied the game for Wilmington. Unfortunately, the officials spotted a penalty on the play, and the touchdown was called back. Wilmington took a 14-8 halftime deficit into the locker room with them.

In the third quarter, the Warriors increased their lead to 20-8 with a Steve Redgate 4-yard rush. Wilmington was held scoreless in the quarter.

The fourth quarter saw the start of a possible comeback by Wilmington. Cutone (second in Division 2 in scoring with 8 TD's and 1 two-point conversion to date) helped lead his team downfield and ran in for the touchdown. Andover's lead was cut to 20-14.

The Wildcats got possession of the ball again and with time running out, hurried the ball down to Andover's one-yard line. Six seconds remained and Wilmington called a time-out to set up a play. The play.

"It was a wedge-right," Cutone recalls, "nothing went wrong with it." The ball was handed off to Tony, who was quickly smothered by Andover's defense. His forward motion seemed to carry him over the plane of the goal-line, but the officials spotted the ball just inches shy of the goal line as time expired. Final score: 20-14.

"Inconsistent," coach Harrison calls the officiating. "I met with Andover coach Collins, and we both thought the officiating was very inconsistent." When Athanasia and Cutone were asked what they thought of the officiating, both of their responses were "No comment."

Andover's record goes to 3-1 with this win. They are in a second place tie in the Merrimack Valley Conference with Chelmsford and Methuen. Wilmington drops to 2-2 and sixth place.

House construction hinges on wetlands permit

Tewksbury Selectmen will decide next Tuesday whether to issue a required special permit to do work within a wetland or watershed conservancy district that will allow for the construction of a single family home on a 5000 square foot lot off Valley Road, an unconstructed street off County

Road. The decision on the case was delayed for one week after a public hearing on November 12. That delay was sought by Selectman Bill Hallisey who walked the site and reviewed more closely the engineering plans for construction of Valley Road. It was again postponed last Tuesday when a neighborhood resident, Andy DeFelice of 25 County Road, presented the board with a report from an engineer he had hired that said the construction of the home would have an adverse impact on the DeFelice property.

Hallisey asked a vote on the case again be delayed for one week while Public Works Superintendent William Burris reviews the independent engineer's report.

Burris, however, stuck to his recommendation to approve the permit Tuesday. He said the filling of a small portion of the lot and the construction of a home will not have an adverse impact on the neighborhood, but did concede there is a water drainage problem in the area. He contended the drainage problem will persist with or without the construction of the home and possibly could be eased if the home builder were required to construct Valley Road in accordance with planning board specifications.

Hallisey had shown initial concern over the case last week and explained that DeFelice's property had at one time served as a basin into which rain water in the area would flow and be held. That area was slowly filled-in over the years forcing water to disperse. A culvert was installed in the area to take water off the site and into a stream that flows to a brook off Baldwin Street.

The culvert, Hallisey said, is apparently now clogged and not working properly. It is that culvert, he maintained, that has caused a water problem for neighbors. He also said a culvert under the currently unpaved Valley Road is too small and will need replacing. Those items, he felt, would ease the water problem in the area.

Hallisey last week said he took a particular interest in the case because his machine shop is located off County Road and he is familiar with the water problem in the area.

DeFelice, however, feels adding a new home and a septic system to the area will only serve to increase the water problem. He presented the board with a one page engineer's statement and asked the decision be put on hold until it is shown whether the replacement and cleaning of the culvert eased the water problem.

Hallisey, however, felt the construction of a home on the 5000 square foot lot would not increase the water problem, but that improper construction of a roadway could because it crossed a large amount of wetlands. Therefore, he suggested, the developer should be required to construct Valley Road from County Road to the lot. That roadway construction, Hallisey said, would have to include removal of wood chips placed on the roadway, the replacement of a culvert and the installation of gravel and hot top.

Hallisey said that it would be "an expensive venture" to build the road to strict planning board specifications and he questioned whether it would be financially feasible to build the road in order to build on a 5000 square foot lot.

Choir rehearsal

The Tewksbury Interfaith Choir grows larger every year. This year, the choir will present a Christmas program at St. William's Church on Dec. 15. Singers in front, at a recent practice, are Jeannette McCusker, Marilyn Gennell, Jeanette Pozerski and Cyndee Carson.

Interfaith Choir rehearsing for Christmas concert

The Tewksbury Interfaith Choir recently began rehearsing for its Christmas Concert. Rehearsals started Sunday, October 6 and are held at the Congregational Church on Main Street in Tewksbury Center. New and familiar voices are invited to participate in the group's Christmas celebration.

While many of the singers are Reservations are with Thelma Rice at 657-8306. Take out orders are available. The price for the luncheon is $5.00. This price includes lobster roll, pickles, chips, cookies, and a beverage. On Saturday a snack bar will be served all day from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Saturday will feature homemade soups. The public is welcome.

from Tewksbury, several come from other towns in the area. In addition, many members of the Interfaith group do not sing in their own church choirs. Membership requires that a person be able to carry a tune and enjoy music and a good time.

The choir has a wide area of experience and seems equally at home with classic pieces as it does with more contemporary music and novelty songs. Indeed, each program is designed to have several selections of special appeal to everyone.

The group is under the direction of Norm DeMarais who assumed his role six years ago and has seen the choir grow from 25 members to the 62 who performed at last year's Christmas Concert. Musical accompaniment is provided by Barbara Flynn, an accomplished pianist in her own right.

A social hour follows each rehearsal. Those who enjoy music, are urged to think about dropping by the Interfaith rehearsal next Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

Wizardry in the Land of Nod

Once upon a time in the fictional Land of Nod, the kingdom's band of rulers was in a quandry.

The worthy advisor hired by the rulers had received from each of the servants within the castle the number of coins they would need to continue serving the people of the kingdom for the coming year.

"As you know," the advisor addressed the rulers, "the people of Nod only allow us to collect two and one-half more coins from them this year than we collected last year. When the master counter of the coins adds all of the servants' requests together, the number comes very close to the number of coins we will be allowed to collect, yet we have many more people asking for more coins."

"Oh my, what can we do?" asked one of the rulers. "Just last week the servants who keep track of the scrolls loaned to our people to read want many more coins to allow our people to read scrolls from other lands in addition to ours. We have said no to these servants many times, and now they are angry."

"I know how you feel," interjected another ruler. "I had a visit from the older members of the kingdom, and they also need more coins to finish repairing the castle we talked them into taking. We dare not offend them as together they are very powerful."

Another interrupted, "Let us not forget the warriors from the south who have promised to protect our property and our servants from the wrath of the gods. They want more coins this year because the gods were angrier than usual last year."

"Oh my, oh my, what shall we do?" the rulers and the worthy advisor moaned while shaking their heads.

There was a blinding flash, the room filled with smoke, and a figure could barely be seen in the middle of the swirling vapors. The rulers started to run from the room when a voice called out "Wait!"

"Who are you?" asked the rulers.

"I am the wizard of the kingdom and have many magical powers," the figure replied. "I have traveled all over the kingdom and have found extra coins for you that were hidden away in many different places. I will give them to you so the people will be able to have the things they desire. I even found some hidden in your castle that you must have forgotten about."

He left the coins then disappeared as quickly as he had come.

"Let us tell the people the good news," the worthy advisor said.

"Why should we tell them?" said one of the rulers. "All of the scrolls listing the servants requests have been prepared and are ready for the kingdom meeting. Also, the people who are asking for more coins have prepared their own scrolls to be discussed by the entire kingdom. If we tell them now that there are enough coins, they may ask for even more coins at the meeting."

"That is good thinking," said another. "We will tell them at the meeting that all of the coins have been spent and they must believe the numbers on the scrolls. If we tell them there is no way to add more coins they will agree to all our numbers. We will wait until the meeting is over before we tell them about the extra coins."

"I agree," said the worthy advisor. "If we make the people ask us for their additional coins at the meeting, they will know that they cannot just ask us for something in the future. It will be good to make them ask in front of all of the people."

The rulers and the worthy advisor left their meeting feeling very happy that they had solved the problems of the yearly coins.

At the kingdom meeting, all went as planned. The people were told there were no extra coins to go around, and all of the rulers numbers were agreed to. When the meeting was almost half over the worthy advisor announced to the people that there were some extra coins that were found and all of the things that they had asked for so far would be able to be paid for.

Near the end of the meeting, the worthy advisor announced there were even more extra coins that were found. The people were surprised and wondered where the coins came from, but because they wanted all the things they asked for, they did not protest too long, for fear the coins would disappear just as strangely as they appeared.

"That went very well for us," said the rulers among themselves after the meeting was over. "I hope we did not forget anything that would make us run out of coins."

"Don't worry," said the worthy advisor, "we can always ask the subjects for more coins later in the year. By then they will have forgotten all about the extra coins we told them we found. We made them happy because they got all they had to ask for. Their memories are short and they will always give us more coins later."

Did Wilmington men fight at Bunker Hill?

Copyright © 1985
by Capt. Larz Neilson

Did Capt. John Harnden and his company of soldiers take part in the Battle of Bunker Hill? Was his company, a part of the Second Regiment of Foot of Middlesex County, in the redoubt which became the target of the British assault?

There is a strong oral tradition in Wilmington and in Tewksbury that the company fought at Bunker Hill. Other than that tradition nothing can be proven, but in itself it supplies a clue that cannot be disregarded.

The Massachusetts Historical Society has no roster or list of the men who fought at Bunker Hill. It is only by review of the stories of participants and observers that the story of the battle is known.

One man only seems to have left a record of having talked with Capt. John Harnden. Asa Sheldon of Wilmington, about 1862 wrote the story of his life which he entitled "Wilmington Farmer."

Some time after the War of 1812 he had an accident at Nod Hill, which he then owned. The mill stood just southerly of where Salem Street crosses Martins Brook in North Wilmington.

Asa tells, in his volume, of walking to the home of Capt. Harnden after he had recovered, and of the pleasure he derived from the visit. He says nothing of what the two men said.

To review a few facts:

On April 21, 1775, the Massachusetts Committee on Safety, meeting in Cambridge, was urged by Dr. Joseph Warren to create an army. The committee voted for a Massachusetts Army of 8,000 men. The vote required the approval of the Massachusetts Congress (the state legislature) before it could become a fact.

Two days later, on April 23, the Congress met in Concord. General Artemas Ward, in command at Cambridge, wrote to say it was impossible to keep the men at Cambridge "excepting something is done." The Congress responded on that same day by voting to have a Massachusetts Army of 13,500 men.

The Congress issued "beating orders," as they were called, to men in Massachusetts who had a military reputation, to enlist companies of soldiers, and to form regiments of those companies. Those regiments were to last until January 1, 1776.

The companies were to be limited to 59 men. There were to be 10 companies to a regiment. An officer could not be commissioned until he had completed his company, or regiment, a process that might take several weeks.

By the first week of May the army was so depleted that the Congress debated evacuating Cambridge and moving their small stores of food and ammunition out into the country. General Ward and the Council of War decided instead to call in all the men who had enlisted, whether or not the companies or regiments were complete.

Sometime after April 20, but before April 24, Capt. Cadwallader Ford left the command of the Wilmington Company of Minutemen. He had become a "rider" (messenger) for the men who headed the Committee on Safety. Riders had been dispatched to Philadelphia to tell the Congress of the fights at Concord and Lexington. Ford may have been one of those riders. Nothing is actually known. Many months later (February 1776) he was publicly thanked for his services.

The company of Minutemen had a new captain on April 24, and a new Lieutenant.

Captain John Harnden, 37 years old, the son of Deacon John Harnden of Wilmington and grandson of Deacon John Harnden of Reading was the new captain. He lived in the home built by his grandfather, after the Harnden Massacre in 1706.

Lieutenant William Blanchard lived on what is now Federal Hill, in Wilmington. Born in Billerica, 24 years old, he was a relative newcomer to Wilmington and was sergeant of the Wilmington Minutemen on Concord Day. His family traced back through several generations to the Samuel Blanchard family of Andover.

Lieutenant Blanchard was one of four Wilmington soldiers who marched on Concord Day and eventually reached the rank of Colonel.

Captain Harnden and Lieutenant Blanchard had a company, but according to the records, there were no enlisted men.

The Massachusetts Committee of Safety decided, on April 29 that any captain who brought in a full company could start immediately drawing pay, even if the company was not a part of a recognized regiment. Captain Harnden and Lieutenant Blanchard had already started. On April 28 they had signed up 10 soldiers.

Three were now sergeants. Phineas Peabody, and 24-year-old Paul Upton had marched on Concord Day with the Minutemen. Thomas Evans, also 24, had marched with the militia. All had been privates.

Seven privates enlisted on April 28. Peter Husey was from Wilmington, Benjamin Rooss from Bedford and Thomas Wood from Concord. Four registered from Billerica. Timothy Blanchard, a 20-year-old brother of the Lieutenant, had received a slight wound at Lexington on April 19. Jotham Blanchard, 25 years old, was a cousin. Benjamin Wilson was also from Billerica, but there is a question about Matachi Davis.

Davis must have been a drifter, in the Massachusetts army camps. He said he was from Billerica, but there seems to be no record of him. Later he was to desert from Capt. Harnden's company.

Nine privates enlisted on April 29. All were veterans of the march to Concord with the Minutemen.

Joshua Wright was 28. Not much is known of Benjamin Gleason. Jonathan Reed was newly married. John and William Gould, 24, were twins. William Butters Jr. was 39 and Ephraim Flagg about 36. Jonathan Eames was 20. John Wright, brother of Josiah, was 19.

Two Tewksbury privates also enlisted that day, Joshua Thompson and John Burt.

Meanwhile the regiments were being formed. Captain Ebenezer Bridge of the Billerica Minutemen became Colonel of the Second Regiment of Foot, Middlesex County. The Lieutenant Colonel had been a Captain of Minutemen from Chelmsford, Moses Parker. The Major was Captain John Brooks of the Reading Minutemen. A physician, and a personal friend of both Cadwallader Ford and John Harnden, he was 23 years old.

Harnden home

The house in the background of this picture was the home of three generations of men named John Harnden. Built after the Harnden massacre of 1706, it was destroyed during the construction of Route 93 in 1956.

The photo was taken after the 1938 hurricane. Herbert C. Barrows, the then owner, is at right front, with his son Bobby beside him. Standing on the tree at left is Bill Andrews, with the other standee being either Myrt Sheldon or Harold Barton.

Brooks, who was to become a Major General, and a Governor of Massachusetts, saw little action at Bunker Hill as part of the Second Regiment of Foot. He was to become Aide to General Ward in command at Cambridge.

He spent a good deal of the night before the battle and during the battle too, trudging back and forth from the Cambridge army headquarters to Bunker Hill. He was carrying messages, and seeking supplies for the soldiers on Bunker Hill. His was an important part of the battle.

On April 30 two former Minutemen returned to their company. Jesse Holt and John Going (Gowing) both of Wilmington were made Corporals. Going, who was 19, was to serve for a number of years in the Continental Army, and then to return to Wilmington before the war was over and be Captain of the Wilmington Militia. Joining as Privates, that day were Jonathan Dean, Benjamin Gould, Benjamin Mastes, John Jaquith and John Johnson, all of whom were of Wilmington.

On May 1 Captain Harnden got a drummer and a fifer. Every military company had to boast that they had men to play those instruments.

William Danforth of Billerica joined as a Drummer, and Thomas Hutton of Reading as a fifer.

Daniel Williams of Billerica joined the company as a Corporal. Josiah Blanchard of Woburn and Benjamin Johnson of Wilmington joined as Privates.

The big push for enlistments came to a temporary stop on May 2, when two Wilmington privates were enlisted. Isaac Pierce, and former Minuteman Nathan Beard brought the number of enlisted men and officers to 38.

Captain John Harnden still did not have a full company of infantry.

But General Ward and the Council of War in that first week in May called in all the companies, complete or not. Captain John Harnden and his men were put on the payroll, as of the date they had enlisted.

Sixteen more men were to enlist, 13 during the month of May and three in June.

Elezer Stickney and William Hill enlisted as Sergeants. Hill listed no town as his, while Stickney listed Wilmington. Benjamin Lewis of Billerica enlisted as a Corporal.

Enlisting as Privates from Wilmington were Ezekiel Andrews, John Davis, Ebenezer Beard, Reuben Gould, William Pearson, Daniel Kidder, Jonathan Fish and John Wright.

Other privates were Benjamin Hunt of Cambridge, Samuel French of Dunstable, and five Tewksbury men, William Harris, Moses Gray, Samuel Manning, Daniel Davis and Jonathan Fish.

Chapter II

Nine Massachusetts regiments were stationed in or near Cambridge, and somewhat near Harvard College. Cambridge was the Massachusetts headquarters.

If the British could get into Cambridge and seize General Ward the war might be over. So the British believed and planned. So, also, the Americans feared.

American officers reconnoitered Bunker Hill with this in mind. They had made several trips, before the middle of June 1775.

The next day, June 16, orders were issued. Three of the nine regiments were to "parade" at 6 p.m. with entrenching tools: Something was going to happen.

The Essex regiment, commanded by Colonel Frye, the Middlesex regiment commanded by Colonel Pepperell, and the Second Middlesex regiment were named. Colonel Prescott was to be in command of the three regiments.

Frye's regiment had 350 men. Prescott's had 300. Bridge, with the Second Regiment, had only 210. There were 200 men from Connecticut, and one company from New Hampshire. The total was less than 1100 men.

Bridge (the Second Regiment) had only 210 men because three companies had been detailed to other duties. Presumably, but not positively, those companies were to guard the camps of the three regiments. That was a customary procedure, for both British and Americans.

It was Frothingham, author of the Siege of Boston (1849) who reported that there were three companies of the Second Regiment which did not march that night. Using an average of 35 men to a company meant that 105 men of the Second Regiment of Foot did not march that night.

One of the companies, it is quite clear, was that of Capt. John Ford of Chelmsford. The company was clearly identified, for it arrived at Bunker Hill just as the fighting started, and was assigned a post near the fence easterly of the redoubt by General Israel Putnam of Connecticut.

There were two abandoned pieces of artillery which Putnam wanted to use. The infantry men knew nothing of artillery, and the episode has been reported quite clearly by several sources. There is no doubt but that John Ford commanded one of the three missing companies.

That leaves two of the companies which did not march the night before as being unidentified. Which were those two companies?

The reader can search all the available literature, and find no clue, but nowhere in that literature is a mention of the Reading company, once commanded by Captain John Brooks, now Major Brooks of the Second Regiment. Nor is there any mention of the Wilmington company commanded by John Harnden.

Frothingham reports that, just as the retreat from Bunker Hill began Major John Brooks was marching enroute to Bunker Hill, with two companies. They arrived just in time to meet the retreating Americans.

Bruce Morang, a capable historian and editor of the Reading Chronicle believes that one of those two companies was the Reading company. One of his reasons was that Major Brooks had commanded that company, and had thus chosen it for a "guard" company at the camp near Harvard.

It is also possible, he believes, that the other company which arrived in time to meet the retreating Americans was that of Capt. John Harnden, a personal friend of Major Brooks.

That could account for two items: (1) the strong tradition that Capt. Harnden was at Bunker Hill and (2) the fact that the company of Capt. Harnden suffered no casualties in that battle.

The November 24 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

The planning board commended the Wilmington Democratic Town Committee for its prompt removal of political signs following the election.

LHB Jack Bowen of the Wildcats football team was released from St. John's Hospital following treatment in time for the Thanksgiving clash with Tewksbury.

Paul Bova of Forest Street, Thomas Fuller of Adams Street, Gerald Pupa of Kendall Street and Ernest Moegelin of Hathaway Road were enrolled in the largest class in Wentworth Institute history.

Planning board members Bill Beers and Danny Gillis opposed part of the proposed new building code that said one of the planning board members should be an attorney and one an architect. The section was taken from the building code of Greenwich Conn.

Eighty-one people were present at a public hearing when the planning board approved the installation of a shopping center in East Wilmington at the Reading line. Speaking against the center were Mike DeMoulas, Harold Foley, Dan Trafacente of Simons

Dept. Store, and area residents Garnet Mills, Freda Gunning, John Foye, John Connolly and Gerald Silva.

The Jaycees presented a complete set of Encyclopedia Britannica to the library. Pictured at the presentation were Dave Webster, Franklin Allen, Mrs. Larz Neilson, Lloyd Bender, Mrs. Clara Chipman, librarian and Town Manager Cecil Lancaster.

The B & M Railroad was preparing to sell land to the VFW on which the building now stands.

Mrs. Oswald Livesey of Belmont Avenue won a hi-fi set raffled by St. Thomas Church.

Eddie Forrest of Baland Road was undergoing recruit training at the U.S. Naval training at the Great Lakes.

Randall Hunt of Glen Road enlisted in the Army and was serving at Fort Dix, N.J.

Sheila Harrington and Elaine Hersom were chosen as co-captains of the 1960 basketball cheerleaders. Other members of the group included Therese Enos, Nancy Elwell, Kathy Harrington, Virginia Casey, Peggy Carbone, Linda Maglio, Barbara Burnham, Beverly Barcellos and Patricia Luken.

Waitresses at Mancini's Restaurant in Wilmington have been taking a course in the proper serving of alcohol. The course, presented by Bartenders Against Drunk Driving (BADD), teaches servers how to deal with underage or intoxicated customers. To visit Wilmington Midge Reardon Bishop and her son Timothy, shown here on a 1981 visit to Wilmington, will have Thanksgiving dinner with her parents in Wilmington.

Midge will be home for Thanksgiving

Midge Reardon Bishop of Krugersdorp, South Africa will eat her Thanksgiving dinner in Wilmington this year, with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Reardon of 31 Marion Street. Also present will be her son, Timothy, a seventh grader.

Midge has been in South Africa for about 20 years. She left Wilmington to be a missionary in that country. In South Africa she married another member of the church to which she is affiliated. Her husband is a carpenter.

Krugersdorp, about 30 miles northwest of Johannesburg, South Africa, according to reports, has been in a peaceful area of that country. Recently there have been reports of violence, northerly and northwesterly of Johannesburg.

Midge and Timothy visited her parents in 1981.

Tewksbury students attend SADD, Jr. kick off

Three Tewksbury High School students participated in the inauguration of Students Against Drunk Driving in Junior High Schools (SADD, Jr.), on Wednesday, November 13 at Waltham's Kennedy Junior High School.

The trio, George Haslam, Jennifer McConnell, and Benjamin Tyrrell, joined with former Boston Celtic star M.L. Carr, the Boston Youth Theatre and approximately 1000 students in helping to kick off a campaign against substance abuse by middle school students. The event was sponsored by Governor Michael Dukakis and the Governor's Alliance Against Drugs.

Mr. Sal Gallo, Health Director, chose the Tewksbury students to take part in the event based on their participation in last year's seventh grade Health/Values course and their leadership abilities. Hopefully, this nucleus of students will gain school committee approval to initiate such a program at Tewksbury Junior High School.

Haslam thought the program was good because it explained something about the pressure of using drugs. Haslam thought a skit showing an older brother refusing to permit his younger brother to get involved with marijuana was insightful.

Tyrrell also said the program was educational. He felt it explained how some kids exert peer pressure on others by trying to get them involved with drugs and alcohol. He also said a part showing drunk drivers and sports figures involved with drugs made a point. That part made him wonder why some people involved with drugs and alcohol don't receive the penalties they should.

McConnell thought the message of the program was great. She felt that education that has already been done has kept some kids away from drugs and booze and has provided a starting place for driving that message even further.

All three students feel that a chapter of SADD, Jr. in Tewksbury would be a good idea. With the students' help, the administration will try to initiate such a program this year.

Christmas Fair-Y-Land

Students of the Louise D. Trahan School (formerly the Shawshen) hold banners, telling everyone where and when the Christmas Fair-Y-Land at the school will be held. The students are also excited about the raffle items for their Christmas Fair on Saturday, December 7 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the school. Raffle items include a Commodore 64 computer with disk drive, a Fisher Price stereo, a gift certificate for the Pike House Restaurant, and many other small items.

Library Friends plan trip to see 'Nutcracker'

The Friends of the Tewksbury Public Library will sponsor an afternoon bus trip into Boston for a matinee performance of Tchaikovsky's Nutcracker Ballet, Sunday, December 29. The 2 p.m. performance, at the newly remodeled Wang Center, is being presented by the Boston Ballet Company.

Ticket reservations are available at the library at a cost of $16.00 per person, which includes both admission and round-trip transportation by chartered bus. The reserved seats are in the lower balcony. Children between the ages of eight and 15 must be accompanied by an adult. Reservations are limited and must be accompanied by payment. Membership in the Friends of the Library is not required to attend the performance.

The outing is part of the continuing Arts on the Move series. This program is partially funded by a grant from the Massachusetts Arts Lottery Council, as administered by the Tewksbury arts Lottery Council.

It's YOUR Money

by Joyce K. Brisbois

Your Home Tax
Shelter

Your home offers you tax advantages from the time you buy it, but none so impressive as the tax break you get when you sell it. You can defer the tax on your profit on the house as long as you invest it in still another house within a specified period of time.

Or, if you are 55 or older at the time you sell, you can take advantage of a once-in-a-lifetime exclusion of up to $125,000 of the gain on the sale. To qualify, you must have owned and used your home as a principal residence for at least 3 of the last 5 years ending on the date of sale.

The exclusion cannot be used piecemeal. If your gain on selling is less than $125,000, you're better off rolling it over to another property now and taking the exclusion later.

That one-time-only rule also means that a widow whose late husband took the exclusion can't get another $125,000 with a second spouse. He'd be wise to sell and take the exclusion before they wed.

A new IRS ruling says you can take the exclusion even if you sell your house to your children and continue to live in it, as long as you sell the property at a fair market value and pay the going rent.

Brought to you as a public service by Joyce K. Brisbois, C.P.A., 8 Middlesex Ave., P.O. Box 176, Wilmington, MA 0187 658-5034.

The Spar and Spindle Girl Scout Council and the Middlesex Conservation District are sponsoring the bulb-planting in order to teach girls about conservation and the importance of protecting our resources and as a thank-you to the public who support Girl Scouting. Five thousand tulip bulbs will be planted across the council this fall.

The week before Troop 182, also from Wilmington, was planting tulip bulbs around the flagpole on the Wilmington common. The eight Brownies and their leader, Mrs. Marie Normoyle, also did some badge work while at the common.

All the girls enjoyed themselves and are looking forward to springtime when their flower bulbs will be blooming.

Another activity planned to celebrate the fifth anniversary of Spar and Spindle Girl Scout Council was a birthday quilt. Each Girl Scout Neighborhood is making one square of the quilt. Mrs. Normoyle created the design for the Baldwin Neighborhood, representing Wilmington and Tewksbury. Pictured on the square is a Baldwin apple tree, the Middlesex Canal and the Baldwin Apple monument complete with inscription. The completed quilt was displayed November 12.

Many more activities are planned. Girls who would like to join in the fun are urged to call Paulette at 658-5271 or Joanne at 851-5298 for more information. Adult help is needed in all aspects of Scouting.

letter to the editor

Dear Editor:

"Caught in the Middle," the November 11 Globe story by Colin Nickerson about the 17-year-old Ethiopian girl facing deportation, inspired Nicole Husen, an eighth grader at the North Intermediate School, Wilmington to write the following sonnet.

Crossroads
Hey listen, all of you.
I would like to tell you about a girl,
An Ethiopian, who collapsed in a swirl.
When she awoke she didn't have a clue,
What course her damaged heart would pursue.
Some in our country would hurl
This beautiful foreign pearl
Back to a life of disease and hunger too.
What's that? You say you care?
That you really do want her to get well?
It's an idea you will find hard to
to sell.
Her chances of life without medicine are not even fair.
Will America, the land of riches and wealth,
Give an immigrant child her chance for health?

Thank you for printing the poem.
I believe it is a sincere expression of concern.

JoAnn Phillips
English teacher,
North Intermediate School.

Check
blind

Lions aid the blind

It was a sort of a feather in the cap for the Tewksbury Lions on November 13th. The speaker for the evening was Charles H. Crawford.

He is the chairman of the Commission for the Blind, in Massachusetts and is blind himself. Before that he was a member of the Consumer Protection Group, in the office of the attorney general. He was accompanied by a young lady named Pat Harrison.

Crawford attended the meeting to thank the members of the Tewksbury Lions for being one of the first to contribute for blind children. There is, he said, "something very beautiful in your being able to contribute to those people."

Last year, Crawford told the Tech report cards issued

Shawsheen Tech report cards were issued to all students, grades nine through 12, on Friday, November 15. The school will hold two parents' nights. The first for parents of students in grades nine or 11 on Thursday, November 21 from 7 to 9 and the second for parents of students in grades 10 or 12 on Wednesday, December 4 from 7 to 9.

Lions, his commission had placed 179 blind persons in positions in industry. Forty percent of those placed went into "high tech."

For every dollar invested in training the blind, he said, there is a net gain. The investment is often paid back in two or three years, and that is not counting the cost of giving aid to the blind.

The agency of which he is a part has a big responsibility, and it responds accordingly. The Somerville Lions Club started, with a nice donation, and other Lions clubs have followed. "I feel proud that we are able to call on the Lions Club for aid to the blind."

Past King Lion Doug Maguire presented a check to Crawford from the Tewksbury Lions Club.

'Just say no' campaign launched by Chemical People Task Force

The Wilmington Chemical People are celebrating their second anniversary by announcing their 1985-86, school age drug and alcohol "Just Say No" public information campaign.

In cooperation with the McDonald Corporation and Readers Digest, they will be joining with the National Federation of Parents for a Drug Free Youth, the National PTA, Lions Clubs and Kiwanis Clubs in affirming their opposition to the concept of "responsible use of illegal substances by juveniles (alcohol is an illegal drug in the Commonwealth of Mass for juveniles).

The Wilmington Chemical People Task Force is announcing a "Just Say No" campaign for all students in the Wilmington Public School system along with the opportunity for $50,000 in scholarships in cooperation with the Readers Digest Foundation. Information will be forthcoming through your local school administration.

"Each year teenage drug abuse takes a devastating toll on the lives of millions of our country's youth and their families. It is no different in Wilmington. We need to wake up, and stand up for our children and stop the "responsible use message" being given out by some organizations." Mixed messages of "we know you drink, just don't drink and drive, must be looked at more closely.

Our children are confused by the mixed messages being given out. School is tough enough without softening your brain with alcohol and drugs" stated Mrs. Anne Linehan, chairman of the Wilmington Chemical People Task Force.

On December 3, at 7:30 p.m. at the Regional Health Center (Wilmington - Rt 62) Dr. John Heckler, Ph.D. will speak on "How to help your children say no." "Children can learn positive peer pressure and resist peer pressure. You as a parent must teach them the facts about drug use, then, they can say "No, I'm not interested, I know it's bad for me!" Dr. Heckler, Regional Health Center.

Call 658-5361 or 658-5336 for more information.

Girl Scout notes

Tour of Boston
On October 5, 100 Girl Scouts from Wilmington and Tewksbury went on a walking tour of Boston. Even though it rained most of the day, it still did not dampen the girls' spirits.
The Brownies and Juniors were divided into different groups, according to age level, each with its own tour guide. They saw many of the historic sights of the city including the Old City Hall, the new City Hall, Fanuel Hall, and the Old Corner Book Store. After the tour, the girls got to walk around Fanuel Hall Marketplace.

Each year Wilmington and Tewksbury plan a neighborhood field trip. Mrs. Sharyn Devlin organized the Boston by Little Feet tour for this year.

Uniforms needed

Do you have an old Girl Scout uniform laying around your house collecting dust? Girl Scouting is now in full swing, yet many of the new girls starting in scouting are without uniforms.

The style of the uniform has changed many times over the years, but everyone is still considered an official uniform of Girl Scouting. If you would like to donate a uniform for use by another girl, please contact Sharon Keefe at 658-7401 evenings.

Wilmington Youth Soccer

The Wilmington Youth Soccer travelling teams have just concluded their Fall season. The association is extremely proud of the skills and sportsmanship displayed by these young girls and boys. This level of play is very demanding and the youngsters made all involved very proud of them.

Wilmington is very fortunate to have had such fine representatives this season. The following team reports will tell you something about the teams.

Girls under 14

The Wilmington girls under 14 team has continued to improve as the season ended, extending their record to 7-2 with seven shutouts to their credit.

This past Saturday the girls ended the season by defeating Wakefield, 4-0. The girls totally dominated the game led by the stalwart defensive work of fullbacks Marsie Resa, Erin McKenna and Andrea DiLeo along with stopper-back Suzy Walsh.

Offensive pressure was applied by wings Annmarie Barletta and Lori Wheeler, along with support from halfbacks Marissa Volpe and Britt Cronin. Goals were scored by Cara Scalse, Sara Soule, Andrea Ducey (her ninth of the season) and Jessica Cleary.

On Saturday, November 2 the girls played their best game of the year in losing to a powerful Reading United team, 2-1 on a goal in the last five minutes.

The girls who were overpowered by Reading earlier, 4-0 showed great improvement as they outplayed Reading throughout most of the game.

Great games were played by Andrea Ducey, who scored Wilmington's goal (the first against Reading this year) from her center forward position, Ellen DeMarco at the center halfback slot and Suzy Walsh at stopper-back. They kept constant pressure on the Reading team.

Outstanding defensive games were turned in by fullbacks Erin McKenna and Marsie Resa. The entire team played a tremendous game, showing great enthusiasm and team play.

Prior to this game, Wilmington had won its last four games against Burlington, Billerica, Acton-Boxboro and Melrose (forfeit). When the team travelled to Billerica they played an outstanding game in winning, 7-0.

The scoring was led by Cara Scalse with three goals, while Kristin Daly scored two goals after coming out of the net as goalkeeper in the second half. Sara Soule and Krista Pagliarulo also scored.

Excellent games were turned in by wings Lori Wheeler and Annmarie Barletta, halfbacks Marissa Volpe and Britt Cronin and fullback Andrea DiLeo.

The following week Burlington journeyed to Wilmington and was defeated, 9-0 as six players joined in on the scoring.

Two goals were scored by Andrea Ducey, Erin McKenna and Krista Pagliarulo, with single goals by Sara Soule, Marsie Resa and Jessica Cleary. Excellent games were also turned in by Michelle Zaya, Suzy Walsh and Andrea DiLeo.

In the second meeting of the year with Acton-Boxboro, the girls defeated the visitors, 7-0. Five girls took part in the scoring, with Ellen DeMarco and Jessica Cleary scoring two goals apiece, while Amy Littlewood, Krista Pagliarulo and Andrea Ducey also scored.

A very good game was turned in by Jennifer Bowen, as she replaced Suzy Walsh at stopperback. Many girls got a lot of additional playing time in this game at different positions and performed very well.

Boys under 14

The Wilmington Youth Soccer Association boys' under 14 travelling team recently completed its season.

The season ended on a strong note, as the team went unbeaten in five of its last six games and made a strong challenge for the division championship.

The strong finish was a result of fine team play and improved individual performance by all players.

Team members are: Mark Bobek, Brian Macdonald, Brian Gillespie, David DiCenso, Jerry Driscoll, Kevin Barrett, Richard Barletta, Eric Creeth, Victor Pacheco, George Driscoll, Matt MacManus, Andrew Parr, Ryan Churchill, Scott Brennan, Dennis Walsh, Bobby Caruso and Bobby Surran.

The team is looking forward to participating in the spring traveling soccer program beginning in April.

Boys under 12

Division 2

Before the first game was played this season, the boys decided to dedicate the season to the memory of Jason Stevenson, their friend and former teammate. Although the dedication was not discussed very often, the number 13 stenciled to their shirtsleeves was a constant reminder.

The team proceeded to have an undefeated season to win the Northern Middlesex Division IIA championship. This is the second time within the past two years that these boys have won a championship with a 9-0-1 record.

Brian Wallace is a hard working wing who has an uncanny ability to head in important goals.

Greg Maiella is a lightning fast high scoring striker. Derrick Stokes is another speedster who plays well at both halfback and striker. Gerard Forgett is an aggressive player who collected several assists on his strong crosses from right wing.

Joey Catanzano is a young striker who scored several key goals. Tom Zaya is another high scoring forward with a very strong right foot. Brent Carbone is an aggressive forward with a number of goals and assists.

David Dussault is a slick dribbler who kicks very well with either foot. Jimmy DeMarco is a very talented halfback who controlled the middle of the field and scored several goals. John Lynch used his superior athletic skills to assist on a number of goals.

Linehan leads BU, 1-0

Former Wilmington Wildcat field hockey goalie Mary Linehan, now taking Boston University to the NCAA Final Four playoff in Virginia, has enjoyed an outstanding campaign, registering 15 shutouts and posting a 0.44 goals against average. She has not allowed a goal in 750 consecutive minutes and the Terrier field hockey team has outscored opponents 40-0 and gone on to win the Boston Four Tournament and advanced to the NCAA finals. Boston University entered the tournament with a 15-2-2 record.

Linehan shutout UMass with six saves, as former WHS teammate Megan Donnelly fired four direct shots at her. UMass finished its regular season with a 13-4-2 record.

The University of New Hampshire entered the tournament on the crest of a 14 game unbeaten streak with a 13-2-5 slate.

Great season

The WHS field hockey girls enjoyed their share of cheers before falling to Triton, 1-0 in the second game of the EMass Tourney last week. It was a great season

Town Crier Sports

Super back

Wilmington High School senior running back Tony Cutone lay claim to the title of Best Back in the MVC with his showcase effort in Saturday's 42-8 WHS cruise past Dracut. Cutone scored three touchdowns and gained 163 yards in 12 carries to spark the home team to their fourth win of the season. Cutone now leads Division II scorers with 92 points while rushing for over 900 yards. The Wildcats and their star running back should give undefeated Tewksbury a test Thanksgiving morning.

Ready for Redmen

Wildcat quarterback Chris Athanasia steps back in the pocket and looks for a receiver Saturday in the romp over Dracut. Athanasia and the Cats have drubbed Billerica and Dracut in two impressive victories this season. They are hoping to keep their offense in gear when they face Tewksbury November 28. Look for the special Thanksgiving Game supplement in next week's Town Crier.

Redmen qualify for tourney, build for next year

A season of high expectations was one that found inexperience outweighing experience, but in an optimistic manner for the Tewksbury High School soccer squad. Six seniors, tri-captains Ricky Heartquist, Marc Masone and Nario Simao, along with Joey Weser, Keith Tower and Jimmy Latta, were never able to consistently perform up to their capabilities due to the inexperience around them and several inopportune injuries and sicknesses at various moments during the season.

On the positive side, 16 underclassmen experienced quite a bit of varsity play, going through a rollercoaster type season that concluded with three straight weeks of season ending pressure, weeks that required the Redmen to earn 11 out of a possible 12 points in order to win their Small School division championship (co-champions with Methuen), and also allow the Redmen to qualify for the state tournament for the fifth time in the last seven years.

A season that ended with a highly respected performance by all-stars Marc Masone, Joey Weser and Ricky LeDuc in the MVC annual clash between the best of the large schools versus the best of the small schools, a game on paper that would appear to be a blowout, but in fact turned out to be a close 2-1 loss for the small school stars due in large part to the play of the three Redmen, plus their counterparts from Wilmington and Methuen.

The disappointment of losing in the state tournament was overshadowed by the fact that so many young players will be returning for the 1986 season, along with additional talent that surfaced during the junior varsity's most successful season ever at 11-5-0 under coach Robert Manzi who was completing his 20th year of coaching either hockey or soccer in the Tewksbury school system.

Tewksbury 2 Greater Lawrence 1

A highly skilled and improved Greater Lawrence Regional Vocational High School team even though seeded higher than the Redmen, came into the game as underdogs.

The Reggie's had withdrawn from the MVC last season because they found themselves unable to compete in the formidable conference. They had a lot to prove to themselves in this game, one which the home school treated with class. The game, played at Greater Lawrence, was one controlled by the Redmen, but as late as four minutes to go in the game seemed to be one that the Reggie's would be able to hold on to win.

Both teams played a jittery first 20 minutes, but after settling down, Tewksbury seemed to take the game to Greater Lawrence. An exciting 0-0 first half score was only a highlight of what was to come.

Tewksbury, as it had been doing all season, had to adjust the lineup and second half due to continued injuries. Greater Lawrence took advantage of the new second half Tewksbury lineup and scored with only a minute and a half to go over a combined lack of communication and moment of indecisiveness by a Redmen fullback.

After the goal, Tewksbury went into an offensive thrust which lasted for the remainder of the game. Several golden scoring opportunities flew over or to the side of the net, or were stopped by the courageous play of the Reggie goalkeeper.

The plugging Redmen never let up, and with 3:04 to go in the game, sophomore Jeff Stone took a crossing pass from senior Marc Masone, and slammed the tying goal into the upper corner of the net. The game ended with a 1-1 tie, forcing overtime. With the lights turned on at the Reggie's Stadium due to darkness, the game went into the third overtime before the Redmen ended the contest.

Tewksbury had more shots, but Medford had more quality shots. Finding themselves behind 3-0, Tewksbury closed the gap to two goals when senior Joey Weser converted a Marc Masone pass.

Tewksbury had several chances in the second half to close the gap even more, but accidentally ended up scoring against themselves as a Redmen defender cleared the ball into his own net while trying to stop a rolling ball.

But, typical of the Redmen these last three weeks, less than a minute later junior Ricky LeDuc cut the lead to two goals again, taking a

The Tewksbury varsity soccer season will go into overtime, sudden death overtime, as the Redmen defeated a spunky Dracut Middle squad, 4-0, to advance to the Eastern Massachusetts State Tournament for the fifth time in the last seven years.

Tewksbury 4 Dracut 0

Goalkeeper Ricky Heartquist, who has been playing excellently in the net for the past couple of weeks during the Redmen surge for the state tournament, held off a young Dracut team during the game's first 10 minutes, then relaxed a little as his teammates finally got their act together and defeated the Middies.

Redmen clinch title

Redmen defenders Dave French (60) and Brian Donahue (78) put the squeeze on Andover quarterback Tim Perry in Friday night's MVC title clinching 10-0 victory over the Golden Warriors. The Redmen have all but clinched a berth in the Division II Super Bowl, but the team is taking no chances, hoping to beat the Wildcats November 28 for a 10-0 state.

The first two overtime periods were filled with Redmen highlights, the most noticeable being a Marc Masone breakaway that ended with a shot off the far post. With 10 minutes to go in the regulation game, Tewksbury goalkeeper Ricky Heartquist was replaced by sophomore Danny Fiore. Heartquist, who had scored several key goals this season when moved up to the forward line, was put in at left wing to try to precipitate a little more action on the forward line.

The winning goal was scored at the 12 1/2 minute mark of overtime when Heartquist slammed in a cross by sophomore Marc Paglia. The goal marked the first time all season that the Redmen had come from behind to win.

Junior Tim McCaffery, forced into the vital sweeper back position for the first time this season, was a key to the Redmen success in this game, as was the play by sophomore Jeff Stone, who has displayed an air of leadership and intensity all season long, rare for a sophomore.

Junior back Bobby Field also played well for the Redmen.

Medford 5 Tewksbury 2

Medford was dominated by the skill of three players, their center midfielder and two highly skilled forwards, one of whom scored four goals. Other than the above three, Tewksbury had several chances to get back into the game, and if they hadn't come out flat defensively may have been able to win, but a loss is a loss, and even in defeat the Redmen fought to the final whistle pass from sophomore Jeff Stone. A meaningless goal by Medford near the very end as the Redmen pressed a little too hard for their third goal resulted in the 5-2 final loss.

Tri-captain Nario Simao played his best game of the year, scoring the team's first and fourth goals and assisting on the team's third goal. The senior wing used surprising speed to cause havoc with the Middie defense the entire game.

Simao's first goal was assisted by junior wing Kyle Favreau on a wing to wing cross. Sophomore Danny Fiore later notched his first career varsity goal on an assist from junior forward Todd Simas.

Senior utility man, in this case playing forward, Joey Weser took a through pass from Simao to up the count to 3-0, while sophomore midfielder Timmy Quinn crossed Simao the game's final goal.

The Tewksbury JVs finished their season at 11-5-0, as they won their game over Dracut by forfeit, as the Middie JVs were unable to field a team.

MVC all-star game

Marc Masone made the MVC All-Conference (large and small school combined - top 15 players in the league) squad, while teammates Ricky Heartquist, Joey Weser and Ricky LeDuc were elected to the MVC Small School All-Star Squad.

In the MVC All-Star game at Andover High School, the Tewksbury representation left many game observers wondering why they all weren't named all-conference players. Goalkeeper Ricky Heartquist was unable to play in the game due to sickness, but teammates Masone, Weser, and LeDuc played almost the entire game, as they were on the short end of a 2-1 score, losing to the highly favored large school all-stars.

LeDuc played stopperback, while Weser played six different positions during the game, primarily wing fullback. Masone was also multi-purpose, as he played three positions during the game, and had several near scoring chances.

Tryouts

Tryouts for girls' basketball will be held at the Tewksbury Junior High School Monday, December 2 from 6 to 7:30 p.m. for senior division and on Tuesday, December 3, from 6 to 7:30 p.m. for the junior division.

Quickness and strong kicking ability were the major contributions from Bobby Deislinger. Christian Armata is a versatile performer who played well at every position, including several excellent goaltending performances.

Brian McGinley used excellent tackling and kicking skills to help control the right side of the midfield area and John Martins used his strong left foot to collect several assists.

Chris "Thunderfoot" DeFrancesco used his strong kicking skills with both feet to keep the ball in the offensive end. Exceptional tackling and passing skills were the major contributions by Tommy Killilea. David Oatis is another defensive standout who helped contain the opponents, and Eric Flynn played well at fullback and allowed only two goals in eight league games in his parttime goalkeeping duty.

Boys under 10

The Wilmington Boys' under 10 traveling team finished its season with a nine win, one loss record. Victories over teams from Reading, Billerica, Wakefield and Burlington were recorded, as the team dominated in all but one game.

A strong Billerica United team managed a 3-0 win over the Wilmington team in an extremely well played contest. Only two other opponents managed to score goals, as this Wilmington team scored 47 times to a total of five for the opposition. Despite moving from Division Four up to Division Three after the third game, the Wilmington team dominated its' Middlesex Youth Soccer League opponents.

On a roster of 17 players, 12 managed to score goals. One of the league's dominant players was center striker Andrew Pagliarulo, who scored 21 times in 10 games. His aggressive style encouraged his linemates to work more diligently at scoring as they combined for 33 goals.

From the striker position, Andrea Armata and Matthew Calandrello scored key goals. The wings provided both strong crossing passes and their own scoring punch, as Patrick Cahill, Eric Shaeffer and Mark Wallace scored a number of times. Aided by the strong play of David Major, this unit dominated the action in nine of the 10 games.

A key element of this team was the outstanding play of halfbacks Michael Moore, Michael Barletta, Adrienne Fay and John McKinnon. Each displayed great quickness and speed, as they kept the pressure on in every game. In addition to scoring goals, these four controlled the action in midfield, constantly getting the ball back to the forwards.

In a season in which the opponents rarely crossed midfield, much credit goes to the fullbacks and goalie. At center fullback, Craig Metcalfe emerged as one of the league's strongest players and a dominant player on this team.

Outside fullbacks Tim McGinley and Michael Giordano constantly frustrated the opponents by intercepting passes and keeping the pressure in the offensive zone.

Brian Surran and Ryan Stuart contributed solid efforts at the fullback position. In addition to scoring as a forward, goalie Billy Bates played very well in the net. He came up with several key saves in a close victory over Reading.

The entire team will be back to play again in the Spring League. The development of sound skills and outstanding position play should provide a good base for the next season.

A common view of Halley's Comet

You'll see it best with the naked eye or binoculars

By Robert C. Cowen

HALLEY'S comet has become a feature of Earth's nighttime sky in the Northern Hemisphere, and you don't need a fancy telescope to see it. It's dimly visible through binoculars and getting brighter every night. By mid-December many people should be able to see it with the naked eye.

In fact, says British amateur astronomer Patrick Moore, that's one of the best ways to admire the comet. He explains that, unless you are a professional astronomer or a dedicated amateur, "you're going to see Halley's comet best if you're looking at it just casually and without doing any serious scientific observation. You're going to see it best either with the naked eye or with binoculars."

Moore — who says he has been studying the sky since he was six years old, some 5½ decades ago — believes you can see a lot in the sky with the unaided eye, plus the occasional help of binoculars, if you have them. And Halley's comet is a good object with which to try your skill.

Constellations make a heavenly guide

As seen from Earth, stars appear to group themselves into distinctive patterns called constellations. These provide guideposts for finding the comet as it moves from one star group or constellation to another. This month, for example, it is tracking westward across the constellations Taurus (the Bull), Aries (the Ram), and Pisces (the Fish).

Many newspapers publish constellation maps, which help you find your way about the sky (The Christian Science Monitor's monthly Sky Chart appears on the fourth Wednesday of each month). Shortly, these maps should begin to indicate the comet's position. Also, Patrick Moore has just published a very helpful guide entitled "Astronomy: Stargazing Without a Telescope" (Woodbury, N.Y.: Barron's Educational Series Inc., $19.95). Working with this, you can quickly become familiar with the night sky.

The comet is not a spectacular sight. Those who located it last week near the Pleiades — a small star group in Taurus — saw a hazy blob with little hint of a comet tail.

Halley is heading more or less straight toward us right now. This makes it hard to see any incipient tail. However, by using the 60-inch telescope at Palomar Observatory, James Gibson of the NASA Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif., has detected what may be the first sign of a tail.

Halley has become visible for casual observers just as it is transforming itself into what most people think a comet should be — a glowing object with a long, sweeping tail. John C. Brandt, chief of the Laboratory for Astronomy and Solar Physics at the NASA Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md., explains the process fondly:

To make a comet, he says, roll some water, snow, and ice of other materials into a ball a mile or so across. Add a bit of dirt and a few rocks. Pack lightly and you have a comet. This is what Halley has looked like during most of its journey through the solar system after its last

Viewing the comet

Best conditions for viewing the comet: on a clear night with no full moon, at a distance from city lights (out in the country is best). The first two weeks of January should give Northern Hemisphere viewers the best look, that's when the comet will be the brightest. The comet's closest brush with Earth will be on April 11. At that time, however, it will be visible only in the Southern Hemisphere.

Thanks for good things

FM TALK: With Thanksgiving next week, what better time than now to give thanks for some of the good things we are had the opportunity recently to speak with a group of people who did just that, and here are a few of the things for which they were thankful:

Jim K., of Reading: "I'm thankful for having a job right now. I work for Computervision, and as you know, they've laid off a lot of their help this year. I managed to keep my job by the skin of my teeth. A lot of my co-workers weren't so lucky."

Barbara C., of Wilmington: "My mother just got out of the hospital. She's been suffering from cancer for a year now. For the time being, she's in remission. I thank God that I've got her around for the holidays."

George P., of Wakefield: "I'm thankful for my friends. I know it sounds corny, but I don't think I'd be much without them. I don't have a lot of close friends, just a handful. But that's all I need."

George's daughter, Jill, who's ten years-old, told us: "I'm thankful for my teacher. She's made me want to read books more and watch tv less, and I know that makes my father happy. I'm happy about having a little brother too. It gives me somebody to play with around the house when I'm not reading. He likes to watch tv a lot, so I still get to watch tv."

Karen S., of Reading: "I'm thankful that I finally made it through nursing school. It was the hardest thing I've ever done. Now that I'm working in the profession, I'm happy that I stuck it out. But if I had it to do over again, I think I would've chosen another career. Nursing school is very hard."

John R., of Winchester: "I'm thankful I've got my health. Without your health, you can't do much. I enjoy getting outdoors — you know, hunting and skiing — and those things make you realize how lucky you are. There are a lot of people who'll never get the chance to do those things."

Richard L., of Woburn: "I'm thankful for my wife. She's been the best damned thing that's happened to my life. She got me off the wild path, so to speak, and has me thinking about a future. Without her I'd have ended up an alcoholic probably."

Carol D., of Stoneham: "I'm grateful for a lot of things in my life, but I guess I'm the happiest about my kids. I've got two teenagers, and thank God the both of them have turned out pretty good. No drugs, no trouble with the law. Both of them enjoy sports, and they are planning to go on to college. What more could a mother ask for today?"

This reporter would like to insert his two-cents worth: "I'm

Wilmington police news

An Arlington man was arrested in the T.J. Maxx Store on November 12 by Officer Larry Redding, and charged with shoplifting of clothes. James P. Aldred was bailed for a later court appearance.

A Burlington man was involved in a one car accident at the corner of Chestnut and Marion Streets on November 13. Paul J. O'Connell of Peach Orchard Road was charged with being a minor in possession of alcohol. The arresting officer was Jim Peterson.

O'Connell was taken directly to Woburn Court, where he entered a plea of guilty. The case was dismissed after a payment of $65 in court costs.

Lorenzo Spingola of Varnum Street, Lowell was arrested on Nichols Street last Wednesday night by Officer Jon Shepard. He was charged with operating while under the influence of alcohol and operating a motor vehicle after his license had been revoked.

Also arrested Wednesday evening by Officer Shepard was John P. Sughrue of Governor Fuller Road, Billerica. He was charged with being a minor transporting alcoholic beverages.

Daniel Treanor of 72 Dunstable Street, Charlestown was arrested early Thursday morning by Officer Jim Peterson. He was charged with operating a motor vehicle without a license, unregistered, uninsured, and attaching license plates to the wrong vehicle. Treanor was also held on a warrant from the MDC police issued from the Revere office.

Three Burlington youths were arrested and one was placed under protective custody Friday evening. Kevin Nyren, 21, with no address, was charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. Carl Comeau, 18, of 193 Mill Street and Terence Griffin, 18, of 6 Gloria Circle were charged with being minors transporting alcohol. The arresting officers were McCue and Neville

Michael Psinos, 22, of 1 Mount Joy Drive, Tewksbury was arrested at 3:05 a.m. Saturday by Sgt. Palmer and Officer White. He was charged with operating under the influence of alcohol, speeding, and failure to keep to the right.

Warrant arrests: Friday Sgt. Vassallo and Officer LeGrand arrested Robert Porcella of Lake Street, Wilmington on a Wilmington default warrant. Saturday morning Officer Mauriello arrested Richard Carnes, 696 Lowell St., Peabody on a Reading Police warrant. Sunday night Officer Redding arrested John J. Hunt of 30 Lowell St., Wilmington on a Wilmington warrant. Monday morning Officer White arrested Jeremiah Keats of 189 North St. North, on a North Reading warrant of default. Friday night Officer LeGrand arrested Richard Brabant, 51 Washington Ave., Wilmington on an outstanding motor vehicle warrant. Sunday night Sgt. Vassallo arrested Thomas R. Foster, 281 Middlesex Ave., Medford on two outstanding warrants.

Monday evening's chemical emergency at the Olin Chemical Company on Eames Street caused the police department to mobilize to cover a worse possible scenario. In addition to the regular shift of five officers and two detectives, 12 off-duty personnel responded. Thirteen auxiliary police also reported under the command of Auxiliary Lt. Ed Williams.

Evacuation was confined to the immediate area of Woburn Street industrial plants. An estimated 2,000 persons, primarily from the industrial companies were advised to leave the area. A number of residents on Brentwood Avenue, Morse Avenue and nearby Woburn Street were advised to seek temporary shelter at the Wildwood School.

In spite of the inconvenience everything progressed reasonably smoothly. No serious injuries were sustained.

There were 20 arrests, nine accidents and six disturbances during the past week. There was one fire, two larcenies reported, and nine persons were taken into protective custody.

One motor vehicle was reported stolen. There were three trespassing complaints and four trailbike complaints.

There were 25 alarms, two reports of break and entry, and three of domestic problems. Liquor related cases amounted to three, one stolen vehicle was recovered. There were seven cases of vandalism.

area affected by Monday's emergency. Residents frequently report odors to town officials, only to feel a sense of being abandoned when nothing is done. Often officials would respond to a call, only to find that the odor had dissipated by the time they arrived. Action against industries producing the offending odors has gradually been stepped up.

The Olin facility is a chemical plant formerly owned by Stepan Chemicals. It was first built in the early 1950's as National Polychemicals. Olin Corporation bought the plant about three years ago, and last year went through a process of testing, recertifying and replacing storage tanks.

Stepan recently settled a claim by the Wilmington Water and Sewer Dept. for damage to sewer mains by chemicals released into the sewer.

An ammonia leak in the area earlier this year was reportedly traced to the Olin plant. Nothing was ever resolved on that matter.

Rezoning

Board has yet to meet on the preliminary plan and, at the moment, there is no way to tell how the lots could be eliminated. The board needs input from the Conservation Commission. And, according to commission chairman Chester Bruce, his board can't make a determination until an engineer has looked at the site and gotten back to him.

Though the plan could be rejected on health, traffic, safety, or conservation grounds, right now, said Gentile, the developer has met most of the criteria.

Attorney Joseph Courtney presented Article Seven for petitioner Al Fiorenza. This article seeks to change 6.12 acres of land off West Street from residential to General Industrial use so the applicant can use his own land. Right now, the parcel is half residential and half general industry.

Though there is no definite plan for the land at this time, said Courtney, Fiorenza foresees putting two 30,000 square foot buildings on the property with a pond to preserve nearby wetlands. Depending on the future location of West Street, Fiorenza may opt to move Casa di Fiore (owned by his father) over to that parcel, should the rezoning clear town meeting.

Two abutters were against the proposal on several grounds. They pointed out that Wilmington has enough industrial land; this will allow industry to move closer to a residential area, and they had concerns over traffic congestion and wetlands nearby.

Richard Stillman questioned what uses could be made of the land at a later date. Gentile explained that such things as a bank, professional office building, car dealership, or light manufacturing plant could utilize a general industrial site without a special permit.

Al Cuoco and Alan Michel met with some opposition over their plan to take the same parcel of land slated for the 56 foot lot subdivision by eminent domain. Town officials provided most of the opposition to Article Nine, an article which seeks to take the land and turn it over to the Conservation Commission since approximately 50 percent of it is reportedly in a flood plain.

Town Assessor Anthony Krzeminski and Selectman Rocco DePasquale were most concerned with "jumping the gun" and the high cost of the land taking.

According to Krzeminski's estimate, based on the filed plan, the cost would be $1.9 million. And, he added, "if we go to court, I would really dread to think what a jury would come up with...if you take away someone's land, you pay dearly."

Even though Michael had received assurance from someone at the state level that the land taking does meet the criteria for 80 percent reimbursement by the state, it was pointed out that the town would have difficulty laying out the initial funds.

DePasquale recommended that the article be deferred to the annual town meeting so all determinations could be made by the various town boards.

Aquifer Protection Task Force Chairman Jim Stewart highlighted the main points of the proposed Underground Storage Bylaw outlined in Article Five. The article, if passed, would bring all underground storage tanks, except those connected solely to a heating unit, under careful testing procedures. It would also require registration of all underground tanks.

In order to cover the town owned tanks also, said Stewart, he will be offering an amendment to the bylaw on the floor of town meeting. The amendment, to take effect in July, 1986, so as not to affect this year's budget, will require that all town owned tanks be tested annually.

As in a previous informal hearing on the draft bylaw, there was little opposition expressed and most comments dealt with clarification points.

Article One deals with budgetary items. Through the article, Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski seeks to appropriate $145,201 for the town's insurance needs for the remainder of the year and $19,753 for a "legal obligation" to meet the town's share of the Shawsheen Tech assessment. The article also seeks the transfer of funds from the police patrolmen's account to the sergeant's account to allow the police chief leeway to create a new sergeant's position.

Article Two asks voters to appropriate $8,565 to pay the court judgement in the action of Judy Freiwith and her fellow euro-missile protesters against the town of Wilmington.

In an interesting twist, however, DePasquale urged all citizens not to support the article. Even though the town is obligated to pay the monies, he said, defeating the article is the only way selectmen could send a message to Judge Keeton that Wilmington "will not put up with this type of activity in the future."

Articles Three and Four, offered by the Wilmington School Committee and Shawsheen Tech, respectively, asks voters to accept state grants for the professional development of teachers under the Education Reform Law (Chap. 188).

School Committeeman Mitchell Spirits pointed out that with the approximately $650 allotment per student in 1985 allowed by law, the Wilmington School System could make curriculum improvements and undertake several "creative endeavors" to better Wilmington's education system. Tech schools committeeman Kevin Sowyrda pointed out that teachers at the Tech would receive approximately $6800 in outright grants to go toward their professional development.

Article Six would allow David Axelrod to take the police exam, despite the fact that he is over the age limit.

Looking for prints

Wilmington Police Inspector John Ritchie was on the roof of Mancini's Restaurant Monday morning, looking for fingerprints from a burglar who broke into the restaurant the night before. Entry was made through an air conditioning duct. The burglar chiseled his way into a safe, and stole a relatively small amount in one dollar bills.

Wilmington school news

As of January, 1986, Martin Luther King's birthday will be celebrated on the third Monday of January. The Mass Legislature enacted and Gov. Dukakis signed into law Chapter 451 of the acts of 1985 to synchronize the state holiday with the federal holiday.

According to School Superintendent Robert Horan, this change means the Wilmington school calendar will have to be adjusted to make Monday, January 20, a holiday for students rather than January 15.

Dr. Charles Twomey, principal of the Shawsheen Elementary School, has announced his resignation from the Wilmington school system, effective December 2. He will assume the position of Assistant Superintendent of Schools in a system in New Hampshire.

The school PAC will host a farewell get-together for Twomey in the school library, November 22, from 3:15 to 5 p.m.

bind the medical profession, or the dispenser would face loss of his license and the right to practice.

The history of hearing aid dispensers in Massachusetts is not the happiest, according to Favorito. In the mid-1970s, he said, the Consumer Fraud Division of the State Attorney General's Office brought about the closing of 15 hearing aid centers.

To avoid prosecution for alleged fraud, the operators of the centers signed a consent agreement, promising not to sell hearing aids or to have anything to do with the selling of hearing aids for a period of five years, and yet the entire proceedings was conducted "very quietly," Favorito said.

Hearing aid dispensers comprise a relatively small business within the Commonwealth, he added, estimating there are about 26 hearing aid companies in operation in Massachusetts today. Thus the incidence of fraud, just a decade ago, and widespread enough to warrant the Attorney General's action, amounted to the involvement of more than a third of the industry then operating in the state.

Favorito and his associate, well-known Reading businessman Harry Ranhand, vice-president and president, respectively, of Solo-Pak of Reading, which Ranhand founded 40 years ago, are not soft on fraud of any kind.

About two years ago, Favorito said with a grin, "Harry and I were involved in an unrelated caper." Ranhand was among several local businessmen solicited via telephone, by a "salesman" who was trying to sell $600 television sets for $200 each, because of "overstocking," Favorito said.

The deal involved bringing cash to a restaurant at Burlington Mall, turning the money over to the "salesman," and waiting in the restaurant for delivery. Ranhand and Favorito responded with a combination of caution and shrewdness. They agreed to buy some TVs, but Favorito showed up with a decoy cop along with the cash — and the police bagged two "salesmen."

Similarly, Favorito and Ranhand counsel caution in responding to some of the direct mail and newspaper advertisements which appear for hearing aids today.

"I'm still surprised at the ethics of this business," Favorito said, tossing a crude flier onto his desk. The hand-printed, mimeographed sheet, replete with spelling and grammatical errors, offered a "small, all in the ear hearing aid for the LOW, LOW price of $299.00. Just $299.00," the flier blared, like a loud radio or TV ad offering kitchen gadgets endowed with omnipotence, "with a one year warrantee (sic)."

The advertiser continued "we will come to your HOME NO CHARGE," and provided three telephone numbers, two at drug stores where you can go to meet the dispenser by appointment, the third an answering service. There was no mention of a hearing test.

Other advertisements which may appear, offering "free," or very cheap hearing aids, are basic come-ons to obtain sales prospects, Favorito said, or pure and simple rip-offs.

The primary market for hearing aids is the elderly, he added — and senior citizens are equally a prime and sometimes unwary target for fraud, exploitation and conscience-less come-ons.

Local lobbyists shout for the hearing impaired

By JIM ROUILLARD

Steve Favorito, Reading businessman and activist for the hearing impaired, doesn't want a lot from the Massachusetts legislature.

He and his colleagues, including well-known long-time Reading resident and Rotarian Harry Ranhand, would just like the General Court to get around to licensing hearing aid dispensers within the state.

Massachusetts and Alaska are the only two states in the nation which do not require licensing of hearing aid dispensers, according to Favorito, certified audiologist and member of the Massachusetts Hearing Air Society.

"Anyone can open an office in Massachusetts and sell hearing aids," Favorito said, "whether or not he is qualified or competent to do so."

Two years ago, Favorito presented a licensing bill to the lawmakers on Beacon Hill. It was defeated.

But that hasn't stopped him from continuing one of many uphill battles he is waging or from probable ultimate success, despite powerful lobbyist opposition.

Next month, Favorito's bill will be presented again.

A jocular and determined man, with a Puckish, infectious sense of humor — and perhaps a little bit of Robin Hood in his make-up — Favorito looks directly at the hard-of-hearing, enunciates clearly and talks TO them, not AROUND them.

Favorito's office at 34 Gould St., Reading, is laden with diplomas, certificates and industry awards. Currently nominated to the board of governors of both the National Hearing Aid Society and the Better Hearing Institute, Favorito said his bill has three major goals:

- 1.) Quality control.
- 2.) Stringent testing.
- 3.) A code of ethics.

Favorito stressed the quality he seeks is not of hearing aids themselves, but of hearing aid dispensers:

"The quality of the hearing aid is controlled by the manufacturer. But we'd like to see the dispenser controlled. Right now, anyone can open an office and dispense hearing aids."

"Yet I'd hate to go to a doctor who isn't licensed."

Favorito's bill calls for initial, rigid competence testing of dispensers, and retesting, every two years, for a dispenser to retain his license.

The establishment of a code of ethics, Favorito said, should bind the dispenser as surely as the Hippocratic Oath ought to

GETTING THROUGH THE HOLIDAYS

Many people feel very vulnerable during and immediately after the winter holiday season. From Thanksgiving through New Year's, they are surrounded with holiday cheer. The media emphasis on family togetherness highlights feelings of loneliness. The January freeze only intensifies the void.

In response to their need, Russell Place Associates, 2143 Massachusetts Avenue, Cambridge, Mass. (876-0763) is offering a group entitled "Getting Through the Holidays." Along with focusing on practical suggestions of how to deal with holiday stress, the group will provide a therapeutic opportunity for personal growth.

Starting the week of Thanksgiving, on Monday evening, November 25th, the group will meet for ten weeks, spanning the holidays and through the January freeze.

The group leader, Rona Troderman-King, LICSW, has led these groups for many years.

HABITAT FALL PROGRAMS

A side lecture on "The Public Gardens of New England" will take place on Thursday, Nov. 21 at 8 p.m. From seaside estate to mountainside villa, each garden of New England reflects the tastes and whimsies of its builder. Mark Zelonis, Director of Blithewold Gardens in Rhode Island, will feature more than two dozen of the area's finest and most interesting gardens. The fee is $3, and no pre-registration is necessary.

Other Habitat programs taking place soon include "Variety and Form in the Winter Landscape" on Thursday, Dec. 5, and "Counting Winter Birds," starting on Wednesdays, Dec. 4.

For more information, call 489-5050. Habitat is located at 10 Juniper Road in Belmont, near Rte. 2 and Belmont Center.

VOLUNTEER NURSES

Volunteer nurses are very special and play an important role at the bloodmobiles run by the American Red Cross. The Medical History station needs to be manned by someone who is knowledgeable and competent. Therefore, the Northeast Regional Blood Services holds training courses annually for licensed nurses willing to volunteer to take medical histories once every three months at bloodmobiles. The next session in the Eastern Middlesex Region will be on Tuesday, December 3, 6:30-9:30 p.m. at THANKSGIVING IS A TIME to be thankful for special friendships, and there is no truer friendship than that of a dog or cat. Pets are kind, loving, loyal, warm and playful - they add so much to our lives. Show your pet how much you appreciate him by making sure he stays safe and healthy this holiday season. Keep tags on your dog and cat at all times, at home or when traveling. Don't neglect him during the commotion of guests and festivity, and avoid giving him table scraps. If you don't have a pet, consider the warmth and love a dog or cat could bring to your life. The Animal Rescue League of Boston has hundreds of dogs and cats of all sizes, shapes, colors and ages just waiting to share your love. The league's Adoption Center is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., seven days a week. For more information call 426-9170.

Dental tips and topics

LASER LIGHT - A space-age development, soon may be used to fight cavities. People rarely get cavities on their front teeth. That is because a front tooth surface is smooth and free of the crevices and depressions where bacteria can collect and begin the decay process.

For years, researchers have been seeking a means to dissolve plaque (that sticky, colorless film of bacteria linked to many oral diseases) with toothpastes and mouth rinses. Some dental product manufacturers believe their research may soon pay off.

Comet...

swing by the sun in 1910. Now, expose that dirty snowball — the comet nucleus — to increasingly strong solar radiation and streams of solar particles, and it undergoes a spectacular transformation.

Brandt explains: "When the sun heats the surface of the comet — ices and snows — to the temperature that is approximately the temperature of the Antarctic Plateau, in the vacuum of space you get what has been called an inverse snowstorm." Particles of ice and snow are blasted off the comet surface. These particles interact with the solar radiation and particle streams to form a vast cometary atmosphere, called a coma, which is blown off to form the tail.

This is what now is happening to Halley's comet. Susan Wyckoff and her co-workers at Arizona State University, together with Michel C. Festou of the Institute for Astrophysics in Paris, were the first to see Halley turn on earlier this year in observations made with the Multiple Mirror Telescope at the Fred L. Whipple Observatory on Mt. Hopkins in Arizona. The astronomers said that, to their knowledge, this was "the first observation of the onset of sublimation in any comet" ever made.

By now, the gas-and-dust coma around Halley's nucleus is about 300,000 miles across. Seen through binoculars, this should be a grayish "cottonball" about half the apparent size of the full moon.

For those who don't already have binoculars and are thinking of buying a pair, Moore has the following advice. First, note that binoculars are classified by a pair of numbers — 7 x 50, for example. That means a magnification of 7 and a 50-millimeter diameter for each objective lens. Then, he says, go for "magnification between 7 and 12, aperture between 30 and 70, and you'll get your best view." Anything smaller is too wimpy to show the comet well. Anything larger will be unwieldy for hand-held viewing. Also, Moore adds, forget about buying a telescope, unless you mean to become an amateur astronomer. Telescopes have poor light-gathering power, a small field of view, and are clumsy to handle. Binoculars, on the other hand, have a wider field, are handier to use, and are generally more useful.

Right now, Halley is well up in the evening sky as one looks toward the east. If you can get away from city-light pollution, you should be able to find the comet. However, the moon is waxing and will be full on Nov. 27. Its light will make seeing the comet increasingly difficult.

Next month, though, as the moon wanes, Halley should be visible again. By mid-December, it will be moving into the Southern Hemisphere, then shifting toward the west. It will be low down in the west late in December and into the new year. By late January, Halley will disappear in the sun's glare until it reappears in the pre-dawn southwestern sky in late February.

Don't expect a spectacular show. But if you would like a glimpse of the famous comet, now is the time to start looking for it.

Halley's comet, 1910: not as big a show this time thankful for my wonderful parents and for a truly great family. I'm also thankful for all of my true friends who have stuck by me through the years, even when things didn't look very rosy. When I sit down to a turkey dinner next Thursday, I'll be thinking and toasting to all of you."

(Above) This chart corresponds to the sky in the Northern Hemisphere at 9 p.m. in mid-November. At the end of the month, this configuration will appear an hour earlier.

Sharon D... of Burlington: "I'm thankful for my dog, Zepo. He's a Black Lab, and he's my best friend. When I get really down, he's always there to keep me company till I cheer up. And when I'm happy, he's always there to play with. He never judges you, the way humans do. He just accepts you for what you are, his best friend, and I love him for that."

Al K., of North Reading: "I'm thankful for having lost a lot of weight this year. Now I can sit down next week at the Thanksgiving table and chow up a storm."

Arthur L. of Lynnfield: "I'm thankful all of my friends have finally gotten married and settled down. Maybe now I can stop spending all my time at the 99, and I'll get something worthwhile accomplished."

Bob D. of Woburn: "I'm thankful for being alive. I had a car accident recently, and I didn't think I was going to come out of it looking the same. But thanks to a couple of great doctors, I've got my face back to where it was before. You take a lot of things for granted, until you almost lose them. I'll never take my life for granted again, believe me."

A third grader for the Wyman School, in Woburn, told this reporter: "I'm thankful for my mother and father. I love them both very much, especially when they let me stay up late and watch tv. Usually they make me go to bed early, but sometimes they let me stay up with them. I'm also thankful for Santa Claus."

Bill N., of Wilmington: "I'm thankful for the Patriots this year. They deserve a break, and this might be the year they get it."

This reporter is also thankful for all you readers who have stuck by this column for years, even when it hasn't been the rosiest. When I sit down in front of that big turkey next Thursday, I'll be having a toast for you, also.

Make it the very best Thanksgiving ever.

Lobbyists from S-3

Hood" cap most obviously, when expressing his hope to get insurance programs other than Welfare's Medicaid to pay for hearing aids.

"A hearing problem is a life-threatening situation," he said. "If a hearing-impaired person is crossing the street and a car is bearing down on him — he may not hear the roar as danger approaches. Similarly, if a woman is near a construction site and the scaffolding gives way, she may not hear the shouts warning her, to avoid being crushed. That's life-threatening."

"I'm working with a group of other hearing aid specialists to try to get payment for hearing aids through Medicare, Blue-Cross-Blue Shield and Medex, none of which now pays for a hearing aid. It's an uphill battle, but I think our elder citizens deserve it."

"The Department of Welfare's Child Health Division will pay for a child's hearing-aid if the family's income is limited."

"Yet stop to think about what happens in our society; as we age, we undergo a role-reversal: each of us becomes a child again, dependent on our children."

We should be concerned with solving the problem of giving people back their hearing, not worrying about how to pay for the problem. But I think the bureaucrats are afraid of giving hearing aids because they think they'll be opening a Pandora's Box — and that everyone will want a lot of other things.

"Yet sickness knows no status — and I think anyone who is sick should be entitled to the same medication whether he's rich or poor. I hate to think we're getting to the point where the rich will live and the poor will die."

Part of the resistance to Favorito's licensing bill, he said, has come from strong lobbying by the state's medical profession, "who feel they alone should determine if a person needs a hearing aid."

"They also want to retain all power within their profession," he continued. Yet part of the paradox of the doctors' opposition, according to Favorito, is that current law does not even require that a hearing aid dispenser have proper fitting or audiometric equipment. "Unfortunately," he added, "there are people who fill fit you for a hearing aid without even giving you a hearing test."

Favorito himself is nationally certified for his proficiency in hearing instrument services, a certification which is renewable every year, he said, and for which he has to take a stringent test every five years.

He said that the other hearing aid companies in Massachusetts are unanimously behind him in support of his bill before the legislature.

As for advice in seeking a competent and reputable hearing-aid company, Favorito suggests calling a hospital or an ear, nose and throat specialist in your area to ask for their recommendation — or contacting the Boston Guild for the Hard of Hearing at 267-4730.

Favorito's career in the hearing aid industry has changed his own life in profound ways, he said. When he first entered the industry, as a telephone hearing-aid solicitor, he had never even seen a hearing aid. Now he's enmeshed in the politics of licensing, in studying and mastering the latest in dry and complex speech and hearing research, and in working with several local and national hearing organizations.

His several years in the industry have not only transformed him, in a very real sense, into an advocate and activist for the hearing-impaired — but, in another unrelated caper, also led to his meeting his former secretary, Karen Guarino.

She is now, by the way, Mrs. Favorito.

Shriners' Harvest Ball Friday

Illus. Potentate Paul F. Miller of the Aleppo Temple Shriners extends a personal invitation to join with them in what promises to be one of their most outstanding social events of the season — The Shriners Harvest

Ball.

This will be your opportunity to enjoy an evening of dancing and listening pleasure. Music furnished by the Aleppo Swing Band. Whether you were dancing to the big band sounds of

Artisans offer 10 ways to buy gifts

During the Christmas season, one task that can dampen even the hardest holiday spirit is finding gifts your friends will remember, not hide in the back of a closet.

As a solution to this problem, Artisan Promotions, organizers of The New England Crafts Christmas Show at the Northeast Trade Center in Woburn, offers 10 tips for Christmas shoppers looking for the perfect gift. When shopping for Christmas presents, keep the following tips in mind:

1. Remember favorite colors.
2. Keep individual lifestyles and personalities in mind.
3. Find a gift that the recipient cannot find where he or she lives.
4. If someone has recently changed his lifestyle — moved or expanded a family — buy a gift that recognizes this change.
5. Keep your friends' hobbies and interests in mind.
6. Have a gift personalized with a monogram or special message.
7. Remember the last gift the person gave to you. It is a great springboard for new ideas.
8. Enhance a friend's wardrobe with a one-of-a-kind accessory.

robe with a one-of-a-kind accessory.

9. Collectors always appreciate an addition to their collections.

10. Buy a seasonal gift to be cherished year after year.

Shoppers can follow Artisan Promotion's "10 tips for finding a perfect gift" at the New England Crafts Festival Christmas Show on Friday, Nov. 22 through Sunday, Nov. 24. The show will feature the work of more than 200 premier local and national artisans.

Crafts will be available in every person's favorite color. There are crafts perfect for a rural farmer or a busy city executive. Christmas ornaments, stemware, ski hats and canvas luggage are some of the items that can be personalized while shoppers are browsing through the many other displays.

Many of the crafts are great for the collector. Folk art, baskets, limited edition prints, stained glass and hand-carved birds are examples of the works available.

The choice of gifts for someone with a new home includes quilts, hand-woven rugs, brass candlesticks and doorstops.

For someone with a new baby, music boxes, bibs, coverlets, toys and dolls are wonderful gifts to help celebrate the new addition to the family.

Santa Claus and a magician will be on hand to entertain the children while the artisans show and demonstrate their crafts.

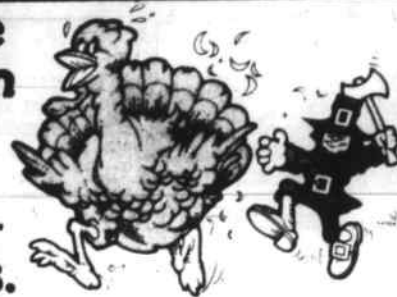

The New England Crafts Festival Christmas Show at the Northeast Trade Center in Woburn (exit 39 off Rte. 128) will be open Friday, Nov. 22 from 12 noon to 9 p.m.; Saturday, Nov. 23 from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.; and Sunday, Nov. 24, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Ticket price for the show is $3.50 and children under 12 are free.

The Totem Pole, Macey Pearl's Tent, Mosley's on the Charles and Kimball's Starlite Ballroom.

Using "Moonlight Serenade" as their sign-on and under the direction of bandleader Harry Fink, a talented musician, the Aleppo Swing Band have appeared at parties, testimonials, receptions, and concerts sponsored by many and various organizations throughout New England. Even if you don't dance, come and enjoy the music and relax in the auditorium, where a variety of refreshments may be enjoyed.

Come to the Aleppo Harvest Ball on Friday evening, Nov. 22 from 8 p.m. until 12 midnight at the Shriners Auditorium, 99 Fordham Road, Wilmington (Exit 13 off Rte. 93). Tickets are $2.50 per person.

Retired Men's Club notes

WAKEFIELD — A standing ovation was given Officer Gordon Mercer, first assistant chief probation officer of the Malden district court, after his exciting and extremely informative address before the Retired Men's Club of Wakefield at the bi-monthly meeting on Nov. 13. He is part of a task force appointed by Governor Dukakis to study whether intensive counselling can salvage some of the young lives that have repeated offences in breaking the law.

Georgia, New Jersey and Massachusetts have been selected as three states to receive a grant from the federal government to make the study. They hope to work intensively with a limited number of offenders to see if they can't through counselling and productive work in jobs, rehabilitate these young men and women so they don't become lifelong criminals. Officer Mercer is optimistic that the experiment will result in not only reducing crime but also in reducing the costs of incarceration which must be borne by the taxpayers of the state. It now cost $125,000 to build a cell but only $4,000 to rehabilitate a criminal, if the system works.

To give the club members a perspective on where these young offenders are coming from, Officer Mercer presented a profile of the typical offender and traced the interesting patterns of societal behavior from the great depression era to the present. Such factors as the desire for depression parents to provide a better life for their children than they had had, the sputnik crisis which changed curricula in the schools, the lace grandmothers for an interesting evening.

Hospice makes home care possible

Sarge O'Toole passed away in June after a lengthy illness. He wanted his final days to be spent at home with his family. The loving care and support of Visiting Nurse Hospice made this possible.

"Home with his family is where he wanted to be. The way it worked out, it was quiet and peaceful. Hospice was a God-send," said Mrs. O'Toole.

Hospice is a way of caring that respects a person's need for dignity and comfort during the final three to six months of life. While honoring an individual's right to receive information and make choices, Visiting Nurse Hospice offers emotional and spiritual support to patients and their families while trying to relieve physical discomfort.

Visiting Nurse Hospice brings to its patients many years of experience in home nursing care. It offers hospice families many support services including 24-hour on-call coverage; home-maker services; home health aides; home nursing care; pain management and symptom control; medical equipment; pastoral counseling; emotional support counseling; volunteer companionship services; and bereavement support.

The services of Visiting Nurse Hospice are offered to residents of Burlington, Malden, Medford, Melrose, North Reading, Reading, Stoneham, Wakefield, Wilmington, Winchester, Woburn and surrounding communities.

If you would like more information on the hospice program, or are seeking hospice support, call Judy Player, R.N., Hospice coordinator, at 438-3770, Monday through Friday, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

CERAMIC TILE STOVES

A New Kind Of Warmth From An Old, Proven Idea

Unlike 95% of the wood/coal stoves available today, Haas & Sohn Kachelofen stoves employ hand-crafted ceramic tiles to form a convection chamber and heat sink around a heavy metal stove. These handsome, hand-glazed tiles quietly circulate heat throughout your home, while simultaneously absorbing and slowly releasing vast quantities of warmth for extended periods of comfort. Haas & Sohn Ceramic Tile Stoves generate a gentle, yet penetrating heat that surprises even seasoned woodburners.

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

Folks, knowledge is not enough - we must apply it. It's like having a beautiful singing voice and being silent. It is a betrayal to our Creator from whom that gift was received. To do otherwise is like an unopened packet of flower seeds never planted, so their full potential of a garden filled with a beautiful explosion of breathtaking colors are never revealed, and its wonderful fragrance never discovered. It behooves each one of us to unlock and release the treasure given to us. We must share its uplifting qualities with others and they can reciprocally share their wonderful attributes with us.

Most women are like pianos, they are polished, upright and Grand. I admit I'm no Adonis. The last time I got on a drug store scale a sign lit up saying, "Only one person at a time please."

Joe Ravida, is a Boston Latin graduate. He can recite Cicero, Virgil and Caesar. As far as I'm concerned, Latin was all Greek to me, as a matter of fact, sometimes English is too.

Timmy Collins, my Latin teacher, would cringe when I'd say, "Latin is a dead language, as dead as it can be, it killed the ancient Romans and now it's killing me."

Doing business without advertising is like winking at a girl in the dark, you know what you are doing but no one else does.

A cluster of small boys, obviously without the price of admission, milled about near the entrance gate of a football stadium. My friend Danny MacMaster felt sorry for them so he said to the ticket taker in a voice resonant with authority, "Let those kids in and tell me how many there are?" The boys filed in and scampered delightedly into the crowd. As the last one entered, the ticket taker said to Danny, "Eighteen." "Right you are," said Danny as he disappeared in the crowd on his side of the gate.

People are sometimes afflicted with occupational ailments - carpenters are prone to ingrown toenails, firefighters suffer from heartburn, people who raise bees break out in the hives, football coaches have bad backs, undertakers have coffin spells, plumbers get wrenched shoulders, lawyers get sick with a brief case of the grip, a cook is apt to go stir crazy, and an automobile muffler installer may become exhausted! Gee, I hope I didn't lose any readers after that nutty chip.

What a wonderful honor for Randall Lennox, who had the Eagle Scout Badge pinned on him by his mother, Janet Lennox, of Tewksbury. The Eagle Scout is the highest rank in Boy Scouting. The president of McDonnell Douglas Aircraft of California, Sandy McDonnell, is proud that he is the president of the Boy Scouts of America.

I was a boy scout, a member of Troop 17, Beaver Patrol, but my mother had my teeth straightened and they drummed me out of the corps. I learned many useful arts and crafts, but I never could get a fire going by rubbing two sticks together. Now I can do it with my eyes closed, providing one of the pieces of wood is a match.

An airline pilot was flying over the Tennessee mountains and pointed out a lake to his copilot. "See that little lake?" he said. "When I was a kid I used to sit in a little row boat down there fishing. Every time a plane would fly overhead I'd look up and wish I was flying it. Now, I look down and wish I was in a row boat fishing." Folks, wishing does not make it so. That's why we must live each and every day to its fullest, now, today!

I'm sure you've heard the expression, "He's in hot water," meaning of course that the person is in trouble. Well, that applies to "Cold water," too. Like, falling through thin ice into the freezing water of a lake or pond.

Through the generosity of the New England Memorial Hospital, the Stoneham Fire Dept. now has a trained, cold water recovery team. Fire Chief Raymond Sorensen, is rightfully proud of the scuba team. They are, Frank Gould Jr., William Bamberg, John Scullin, Dave Emery, William Flynn, Dave Bettencourt, Paul Bears and Paul Kearney. Woodchips thanks Town Administrator William Sequino and Wolfgang Von Maack, president of the hospital.

If you look like your passport picture, brother you need the trip. The following are some readers who like this column: Arthur Marino and Lenny Gaudioso of Stoneham, Ed Baratta and Kathy Wilk of Winchester, Wayne Higden and Kenny Kirkland of Burlington, Rita Coyne and Jackie Young of Woburn, Connie Johnson and Bill Cerretani of Wakefield, Eleanor and Buddy Stratton of North Reading, Peter and Donna Aloisi of Lynnfield, Suzy Arlen and Shirley McGurn of Tewksbury. Also Larz F. Neilson and Ed Sargent of Wilmington and Tom Jordan and Vinny Harrington of Reading.

Now, I'll give equal time to those who hate this column: my aunt Maria of Wilmington, who told me her parrot loves it. Frank Mazzoni who gives it to his children to read as punishment. Joe Foley of Tewksbury who says it makes a good mulch.

The quickest way to lose your shirt is to put too much on the cuff. A cousin of mine worked in the hardware department of a large store. After 30 years of faithful service he was concerned for his job because he was going deaf. But he worried for nothing. Management put him in charge of the complaint department.

Sgt. John Brown shouted to me yesterday, "Hey Woodchipper, don't you know that your wife fell out of your car when you made that sharp turn on Main Street?" "Oh, is that what happened. Thank God, I thought I was going deaf." There are many statues of famous people in Washington. There is also one of Napoleon but you can tell that he wasn't a politician because he has his hands in his own pockets. Bill Burton said, "Woodchipper, there should be a statue of you in Washington, it will keep the pigeons off of the other statues."

I took my wife to a dance at the country club. She wore a peek-a-boo dress. The men all peeked then booed. The hostess asked me, "Why aren't you dancing?" "I'm a little stiff, from Polo," I replied. "I don't care where you're from, you are here to dance and enjoy yourself."

"The Village Church" In a little church near Naples, A city by the sea, Mid olive trees and maples.

Our fathers prayed on bended knee. 'Twas a humble house of prayer. They truly loved it so, As they worshipped daily there, Coming from high and low, No painted dome to please the eye. Or costly chandelier, No organ notes or choir high, To charm the listening ear, No pictured casement rich and rare, With polished crimson stain, No carpet in the aisles were there. Inside or out was plain, No marble pillars are needed, To answer our Lord's call, For the Prince of Peace has pleaded. "Come, I love you all."

North Suburban Y joins centennial celebration

Although the North Suburban YMCA pool is only fourteen years old, it will join with over 2,000 Y's across the country, this fall, in celebrating the centennial of the first YMCA pool which opened in Brooklyn, N.Y. in 1885. In those days pools were known as "Baths" or "Plunges" and measured 45 feet by 14 feet. They were also unheated which limited swim time to 15 minutes or less. The North Suburban Y Pool was built in 1971 along current standard dimensions of 75 feet by 35 feet. It is also a bit warmer with temperature kept at 84 degrees to assure bather comfort.

For the past 100 years YMCA staff and volunteers have been pioneers in the field of aquatics, developing innovative new programs which we take for standard practice today. It was the YMCA, for example, who introduced the concept of group lessons in 1906 when George Corsan, a famous swimmer of his day began traveling to local Y's to teach swimming in groups, rather than individuals. In 1910, Corsan launched the first national instructional program of its kind in swimming, whereby YMCA's across America began holding "Learn to Swim" campaigns for youth during spring and summer vacations. Almost 16,000 people were taught to swim that year. This year about 2 million will learn to swim at local YMCAs.

Over the past century the YMCA has pioneered many other methods of aquatic instruction, including: The progressive swim program, in which children are taught different techniques in successive stages; a national program to train lifeguards and swim instructors, plus swim lessons for preschoolers, spring board diving, aquacise and competitive swim program.

The YMCA has taught more people to swim than any other organization making it America's favorite swim instructor.

The North Suburban YMCA is currently taking registrations for its next swim session. They will be offering aquatic programs for babies, tots, youth and adults as well as water exercise, diving and advanced life saving.

For a free swimming test and evaluation come to the Y on Tuesday, Thursday or Friday afternoon from 4:15 to 5:00, no appointment necessary, to determine which level is best for you or your child. For more information about swimming at the Y call 935-3270.

Join the Y's 100 years of swimming celebration today!

Grads finish school, dismayed over the cost

American families are being "driven into considerable levels of debt" to pay for the rising cost of college, says John C. Hoy, president of the New England Board of Higher Education (NEBHE). A larger majority of New Englanders compared to the American public overall is worried about the rising costs of higher education.

Though Americans express deep concern about steadily increasing tuition costs, Hoy told the nation's financial aid executives attending the annual joint conference of the National Association of State Scholarship and Grant Programs and the National Council of Higher Education Loan Programs in

New Orleans on Wednesday (November 6), they show strong support for federal financial assistance, both for students and colleges.

Hoy said that these were the findings of a national survey of American attitudes toward higher education conducted in the first week of October by the Opinion Research Corporation (ORC). The New England Board of Higher Education was national co-sponsor of the opinion poll.

A major finding of the ORC poll was that a growing number of adult Americans intend to complete additional schooling, even as they express dismay about the rising costs of college education.

"When you consider that college tuition costs since 1978 have been going up at almost double the rate of inflation," Hoy said, "you cannot escape the conclusion that college and university administrators must do a better job of explaining and justifying this continuing disparity to an irritated public."

The average tuition payer, he said, still hasn't the faintest idea why college and university costs are increasing while the rate of increases of prices and wages has slowed down significantly for American industries and workers since 1981.

"The people who run higher education in this country have failed to get their message across to the public," Hoy said. "They had better start doing so if they expect to continue to get the handsome increases in funding they have received from state legislatures and private contributors in recent years."

NEBHE is a congressionally authorized, regional, non-profit agency that seeks to encourage cooperation and efficient use of resources among colleges and universities in New England. Basic funding comes from the region's six states and New England-based corporations.

Girl Scouts gear up for phone-a-thon

Reading Girl Scout volunteers are "gearing up" for an upcoming phonathon to Girl Scout families and friends. Money raised from the phonathon will support Patriots' Trail Council's $2.5 million Capital Campaign which has currently raised more than $2.3 million from corporations, foundations, small businesses and Girl Scout families and friends. Capital Campaign funds will be used to renovate and restore Girl Scout camps and Community Centers.

Reading Community Division volunteers have set a goal of $13,000 toward the Campaign. Community Division volunteer Jim Stewart feels that the upcoming phonathon will help bring the final Community Division dollars. "It is our own Girl Scout families who will benefit from the upgraded camp facilities the Capital Campaign will fund," Stewart said. "With construction already underway at many Council properties, I'm confident that Reading families will support the Campaign and help us reach our local and council-wide goals."

Patriots' Trail Girl Scout Council is the largest council in New England serving more than 37,000 girls and adult volunteers in 65 cities and towns. For more information on the Capital Campaign and the Reading phonathon, contact Jim Stewart at 942-0579.

it's my season to sparkle!

I can't wait for you to see my store! Our whole crew has been planning, decorating and working hard since last July to make this Christmas the best yet.

Steve, Kip, Debbie and all the other store managers have done a terrific job in their stores, too! Christmas is the season for all of us to sparkle — we all work hard to have the most beautiful store in New England.

"LET THE GOOD TIMES ROLL"
A word about our business philosophy: We feel there are three key ingredients that make a fun time. The Disc Jockey, the music and most important of all you! At our company we try never to lose sight of this fact and our years of experience have taught us that when you do a good job you'll be rewarded with new business. Yes, price is important but as with all things in life it certainly shouldn't be the deciding factor. While we possess some of the most modern equipment available including lights etc., it's really the music that makes the night, which is one reason we do not use pre-recorded tapes or other props - just records, literally thousands at your disposal. Our musical format includes songs from the 20's right up to todays hits. Naturally, records are available and we've been critically acclaimed in Boston Globe Magazine and you'll also find us in Boston Magazine as well as local publications. By the way, no party is too large or small, we do them all - from a house full to a hall full. We are also the wedding specialists. So there you have it. Great music and good times. A recent press release offers a terrific winter vacation opportunity. Outdoor Tours Unlimited, Maple Corner, P.O. Box 97, Calais, Vermont 05648 will host inn to inn tours which consist of weekend, holiday, and five day cross-country skiing, snowshoeing, and walking vacations. Joffrey Ballet

The "Joffrey II," a unique extension of the world-renowned Joffrey Ballet, will bring "Tales From Hans Christian Andersen" to Andover's J. Everett Collins Center for the Performing Arts on Saturday, Nov. 23 at 8 p.m.

The company will perform "The Little Mermaid," the tale of a fish yearning for her beloved prince in a far away land, and "The Nightingale," a story about an emperor who falls under the spell of innocent love. Those who love to dream will delight in this wonderful interpretation of "Once Upon a Time," in a full evening of classical ballet.

Formed in 1969 and dubbed "a galaxy of rising stars," the Joffrey II represents 14 outstandingly talented young performers (age 16-22) who are selected from across the country by the company founder and artistic director, Robert Joffrey.

Nov. 23 brings the Joffrey II to Andover to perform two of Hans Christian Andersen's most beloved fairy tales, "The Little Mermaid," and "The Nightingale," an exquisite evening of ballet for all ages.

The "Joffrey II" in performance at the J. Everett Collins Center for the Performing Arts, Andover; Saturday, Nov. 23 at 8 p.m. Tickets are $14 and $17, available at the Collins Center box office, Shawsheen Road, (off routes 133 and 95 in Andover); or call 470-1905.

the group stays at one country inn the entire weekend and takes day trips from there. On all inn to inn trips, a Outdoor Tours Unlimited vehicle accompanies the tours to provide assistance if needed and to transport luggage.

Tours are planned for the Green Mountains, Central Vermont, Northern Vermont, as well as a Brookfield weekend, a Northeast Kingdom weekend, a Mad River Valley weekend, and an Adirondack weekend.

For more tour information and applications, call 802-229-4570.

From the "Messiah" to an inn-to-inn ski tour, from Castle Hill to Salem, COMING ATTRACTIONS roams around New England searching out that special event to try or see. But as always we are interested in events and attractions we do not know of yet. If you have knowledge of a "coming attraction," write, care of this local newspaper and tell us all about it.
